'Y' Campus Changes—and Grows

Summer session saw construction on several projects the beginning of construction of a $2,927,000 library and 149,900 recreation area at Brigham Young University. This construction program—second phase in the BYU program—will continue when it is opened Sept. 15 for the Administration and General Services Bldg. Now on the draw. Boards or in the planning are a student union building and a fine arts building.

Growth Apparent
Work continued during the ten weeks and growth was obvious on most of the projects during that period. Buildings being worked on include the $800,000 industrial Bldg. and the $2,000,000 greenhouse building.

In the sports area, the $300,000 addition to Smith Fieldhouse went steadily upward and the fieldhouse took shape. New tennis courts were put in place.

Two Halls Finished
Two new Heilman Halls—designed to be named Budge and Hill halls—are nearly completed and finishing touches will be made by the beginning of autumn quarter. At that time, seven hundred girls will move into the halls.

The Old 'Y' Bell finally found its home as summer construction completed the long-awaited 'Y' tower. This $5,000 structure sits on the brow of the hill in Cougar Stadium.

Singers 'Gifted' in Opera...

Critic Likes 'Old Maid and Thief'

by GERALD WILDE

Universe Drama Critic

The "Old Maid and the Thief" the Opera Workshop's one-act offering, was a delightful, stylish piece of comedy marred only by a dozen or so faults.

Anyone of these faults, alone, would either go unnoticed or be chalked up to "first-night jitters." But all together they indicate a lackadaisical attitude on the part of someone.

MOST CERTAINLY it was not the fault of the highly gifted cast. Their characters, meant to be typed, were refreshing and enchanting because of the sparkling personalities of the players. Ruth Melville's Miss Todd was especially well created. Her comic index dominated the entire presentation. Yet she never attempted to tempt the audience into cheap clowning.

MISS PINKERTON as played by Theresa Hadlock was the most stylized of the quartet, yet the animation was not overly exaggerated.

Nanette (Lactina) Hineckley and Ross (Bob, the thief) Brown gave their great contrast in character and temperament, though their lack of the polished style of the two and mounds.

NANETTE ADDED the right amount of warmth and charm to the excellent music. One who deserves much of the praise and credit for an enjoyable evening is Barbara Allen, a very talented pianist.

possible, to return volumes during regular hours.

Why not at the BYU, a typical American college?

The simple use of a saw to make a hole in the front door, and the placement of a box, to catch the books that fall through during the off-hours of the day, would alleviate a very undesirable situation which has caused grief, and cost money, to many a late-hour book-worm.

Collagraphy, Metal Sculptures Of Washington Artist on Display

Artists have always searched for new ways of graphic expression, and a young visiting artist at Brigham Young University is one who has been successful.

He is Glen Alps, professor of art at University of Washington, who is conducting a two-week course at BYU in printmaking techniques.

SINCE 1956, Prof. Alps has been experimenting with a new medium which he calls "collagraphy." An exhibit of this new type of art is now on display at the Art Department gallery in the Education building on lower campus and will remain until the end of August.

In addition to collagraphy, it includes his metal sculptural designs created from rods and sheet metal.

THE COLLAGRAPHY is a proof pulled from a plate which has been built up as a collage by gluing or stapling bits of various materials such as paper, fabric, string, metal, cork or wood to a sheet of masonite or wall board.

"If we'd only left our problems at home..."
On the road, driving's your only problem! It better be! Your safety often demands quick decisions, taking the right action fast. Unless driving has all your attention, you could come up with the wrong answers. Last year, 37,000 people died in traffic accidents—40 times that many were injured. No driver can afford to overlook the consequences of inattention at the wheel. Keep your mind on your driving—keep on living!
